Estate planning class for families in August

Cabrillo College Extension will offer a series of classes on estate planning and end-of-life planning on Saturdays August 2-23.

Topics include selecting trustees, understanding estate legalese, health care choices, planning for elder care and end-of-life costs, creating your legacy and peaceful estate settlement.

The classes address such questions as: Who will take care of my parents in their old age? Who will take care of me in my old age? What does care cost? How will it be paid for? What impact will elder care have on the family? How do I get my siblings into agreement when making the hard decisions?

You can take the whole series or any individual class. Most are half-day classes, except the all-day financial planning class. Each class is tailored to the specific interests of the participants.
